

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

September 20, 2016

Contact: Laura Tierney

Email: ltierney@bcse.org

Office: 202.785.0507

Clean Energy Industries Join Diverse Set of Businesses to Call for Tax Extenders

Washington, DC – Business Council for Sustainable Energy (BCSE) President Lisa Jacobson offered the following statement on the letter sent to Congress today in support of a multi-year extension of tax provisions that are currently slated to expire at the end of 2016:

“The Council is pleased to be a signatory to the broad coalition letter released today calling for immediate action on a range of tax extenders this year.

“Current law provides a number of tax provisions to spur clean energy generation and energy efficiency. Without congressional action, several of these measures will expire on December 31, 2016.

“Bringing together agriculture and transportation organizations, the letter demonstrates the breadth of interests that rely on stable policy frameworks to expand investment and create jobs around the country.

“As the letter states, ‘allowing these tax provisions to lapse effectively increases taxes on entities that create jobs and economic growth.’

“The Council looks forward to working with Congress to provide a seamless, multi-year extension of the tax provisions that are currently slated to expire at the end of 2016.”

###

The Business Council for Sustainable Energy (BCSE) is a coalition of companies and trade associations from the energy efficiency, natural gas and renewable energy sectors, and also includes independent electric power producers, investor-owned utilities, public power and commercial end-users. Established in 1992, the Council advocates for policies that expand the use of commercially-available clean energy technologies, products and services. For more information on the Council, please visit: www.bcse.org and download Sustainable Energy in America Factbook 2016 edition for the latest industry information.